GETTING SMART ABOUT ACQUIRING TALENT -- FONTERRA LOOKS TO FUTURESTEP

Fonterra Engages Recruitment Process Outsourcing (RPO) Leader to Drive Talent Acquisition

WELLINGTON, NZ, SINGAPORE, February 26, 2008 – Futurestep, the outsourced recruiting subsidiary of Korn/Ferry International (NYSE: KFY), today announced that it has been engaged by Fonterra, the world’s largest dairy exporter and New Zealand’s largest employer, to provide RPO services for its operations in the Australasia region.

The RPO effort marks the continuation of a long-standing relationship with Futurestep and Fonterra, and highlights Fonterra’s commitment to approaching talent as a strategic priority to stay at the forefront of its industry. With nearly 17,000 employees and global operations, Fonterra is New Zealand’s largest company and one of the top dairy companies in the world.

In the engagement, Futurestep will provide strategic sourcing for permanent and fixed-term staff in Australia and New Zealand. Services cover all critical elements of Fonterra’s recruiting effort, including: internal candidate management, vendor management, graduate recruitment and international recruitment, as well as management of its recruiting technology.

“The ability to identify, attract and retain the right talent is essential in today’s global marketplace,” said Mr. Robert McNabb, chief executive officer, Futurestep. “As a leader in its industry, Fonterra understands the importance of talent and of having an effective recruiting capability. Futurestep is a perfect fit for meeting Fonterra’s needs. We’re delivering an RPO service that is innovative, scalable and cost-effective, but most importantly, we’re giving Fonterra the edge it needs to compete for talent and win.”

“Getting smart about how we find candidates in a much more targeted and proactive way is one of the key outcomes we expect from this new model. We have the confidence in Futurestep to deliver,” said Ms. Heather Kean, general manager, Talent & Engagement, Fonterra.
